

My name is Miguel Luiz Ferreira Ramalho, I am 13 years old, from Governador Valadares, Brazil. I study at the Joaquim Pedro do Nascimento State School.

Classes were interrupted in March when the pandemic began.

Face-to-face classes have not yet been resumed, but we are taking them online.

For example, I am studying with booklets, on the phone, and on the computer.

My biggest difficulty is not having the teacher by my side to help with my doubts, nor my classmates, and I'm not used to the online classes.

Besides the online classes, I have been playing indoors with my mum and dad.

In my city and in my country, the coronavirus situation is tough. Many people are dying due to the coronavirus, and many people are out of work. For instance, in my house, my mum is jobless, but, God willing, all this will pass.

It is an unusual situation, we have never been through this before, but there's a negative and a positive side. The positive side is that we are spending more time with our family, with the people we love. The negative side is that many people are unemployed, and people are dying due to the coronavirus.

Restarting to transform